FASHIONABLE CLUBS CLOSED BY TROOPS

Names of More Than Two Hundred Patrons of Resorts Taken; Equipment
Confiscated.

New Orleans, July 12.—(AP)—Treats of Governor Huey P. Long to use the state militia in suppressing gambling in St. Bernard parish were executed in dramatic fashion early today when national guardsmen, acting on the governor's orders, raided two fashionable clubs and seized the gambling paraphernalia.

Names of approximately 225 persons found in the two places—the Jai-Alai Fronton and the Arabi club, located just outside the New Orleans city limits—were taken for future reference. The patrons, many of whom were women, were released after being questioned and no arrests were made.

The only casualty of the raid was Neil Simes, staff photographer of the Times Picayune, who was attacked and beaten by about 50 men as he was attempting to take a picture. Guardsmen saw the attack and battered their way through the crowd and rescued him. He was unconscious when found and was still in a serious condition today.

Governor Orders Raid.
Governor Long, who was in New Orleans last night, heard that the two places had reopened. Immediately he issued an order to Adjutant General Raymond H. Fleming to see that they were closed. Unwilling to trust the order to a messenger, the governor called a taxicab and traveled several miles to deliver it in person.

When General Fleming received his instructions he acted swiftly. Within half an hour the raid was over and General Fleming telephoned Governor Long, who had returned to his hotel, that the order had been carried out.

Colonel E. P. Roy, who was placed in personal command of the raid, warned his men not to shoot unless ordered, but to shoot without hesitation if the order was given.

Soldiers Get Instructions.
"You are about to deal with desperate men," he said, "remember that you are soldiers and that you are engaged in serious business of your state. You are to enforce its laws."

The men climbed into automobiles and crouched down, waiting for the order to move. The raid was swift and the uniforms would not be seen. Three officers and five men went to the Jai-Alai club and two officers and five men to the Arabi club. The establishments face each other on the same street.

Heavily armed, the soldiers entered the club. Women screamed and several fainted. A shot rang out, he believed to have been fired by a sentry on guard to the gamblers of what was taking place. There was a quick grab for money on the gambling tables.

Order, however, was restored in a few moments. And then the two captains in charge at the time barked out:

"If you want to shoot it can be perfectly willing, but we don't want any shooting if it can be avoided. We want to make it as easy on you as possible."

Disturbance Ends.

There was no further disturbance and the money and gambling equipment quickly was secured and the names of the patrons obtained without difficulty.

A big bonfire was held this afternoon when all the gambling paraphernalia that was inflammable was burned. The remainder was hacked to pieces with axes. What disposition will be made of the money had not been decided today, although it was generally understood it would be turned to some state fund.

Governor Long's order to the adjutant general said he had learned "that the gambling laws of this state are being openly violated in the parish of St. Bernard."

PUBLIC OPINION IN EUROPE STRONG FOR PEACE TREATY

English Church Calls
Special Day of Prayer for Success of Briand-
Kellogg Pact.

BY WILLIAM R. KUHN,
Cable Editor The Associated Press.
New York, August 12.—The first reaction in foreign capitals to England's unrelenting mood in tossing the infant Briand-Kellogg peace treaty to the leopards has been "The treaty might as well learn right away how to take care of itself."

Events of the week have reflected to a striking degree the great weight of public opinion abroad supporting the treaty's simple renunciation of war as an instrument of national policy. The English church has declared an official day of prayer for the agreement's success on August 27, when it will be signed in Paris.

The prospect, however, that the words of the document will get their first definition from Geneva has raised the curtain on an international drama of tremendous significance. The cable of each day brings fresh proof that no one knows where or when Secretary Kellogg's peace action is coming down.

England's action, as viewed through the monocular of statesmen abroad, has made one important development fairly certain: There will be only a distant relationship between the treaty and the peace treaty, as it will be signed in Paris, and the millennial idea which parliaments and congresses of signatory nations will be asked later to ratify.

The British government caught up with the United States in two jumps: One, a settlement of the Nanking affair in 1926, and the other, an agreement to negotiate a new commercial treaty with China. Altogether these events have had the effect of leaving Japan to fight her own battle.

The British foreign minister, Sir Austen Chamberlain, is coming to California. Despite assurances that the trip is for health and not politics, the interpretation has been inevitable that he would welcome an informal chat with Secretary Kellogg or other American officials on disarmament, China and other matters.

His decision not to attend the signing of the Briand-Kellogg treaty in Paris, August 27, has raised the question whether that event should be a conference of foreign ministers or simply one of lesser agents representing the signatory powers.

Blaze Controlled.
The sudden death of Stefan Raditch, the Croatian peasant leader, revived the usual fears of a Balkan eruption. Apparently, however, while there is still much smoke, the blaze of sectional patriotism which seemed likely to break up the kingdom of Yugoslavia has been brought under control. It is now hinted in dispatches that the Croatian and Serbian leaders are content.

GIRL TAKES LIFE AFTER QUARRELS WITH SWEETHEART

Miss Gertrude Moultrie, 22-year-old stenographer, died at Georgia Baptist hospital about 11 o'clock Sunday night, two hours after she had been taken there suffering from the effects of poison which she swallowed at her room in the Y. W. C. A. The only statement which she made before she lost consciousness was that she took her life because of misunderstandings with her sweetheart.

Several of Miss Moultrie's relatives were at her bedside when she died. The body was removed to the undertaking parlors of Barclay & Brandon, who will announce funeral arrangements later.

THOROUGH PEN PROBE PLEDGED BY CHAIRMAN

Congressman J. G. Cooper
Declares That Every Phase of Prison Life
Will Be Delted Into.

When the recently-appointed congressional investigating committee on federal prisons reaches Atlanta, some time in November, it will be the thorough-going investigation of every phase of prison life and activities at the local institution, it was learned Sunday night when Congressman J. G. Cooper, chairman of the committee, was reached by telephone at his home in Youngstown, Ohio.

The chairman of the special committee, of which Congressman Thomas M. Bell, of Georgia, is a member, explained that the group will make personal investigations at every federal penal institution in the United States and in each instance will make the probe thorough and comprehensive. He stated that while the committee had not been appointed because of alleged irregularities at any of the prisons that the investigation will be made with a view to preparing a complete report and making recommendations to congress. The principal reason for the probe, he continued, is to determine the extent to which crowded conditions are proving detrimental and to prepare recommendations for the enlarging of the various units.

Stringent Probe Planned.
While denying that the express purpose of the investigation is to ferret out irregularities that may exist he made it plain that at each institution the probe will be impartial and stringent and that if any undesirable conditions are brought to light they will be dealt with summarily.

The committee will start its personal tour on August 28, going first to the penitentiary at Chillicothe, Ohio, and then to the women's federal prison in West Virginia. Beyond that point, the congressman said, the itinerary is not definitely set, adding that it was not likely that Atlanta would be visited until after the general election, some time in November.

When reached at his home in Gainesville, Congressman Thomas M. Bell, Georgia's representative on the committee, reiterated his statement made Saturday to the effect that he would insist on a thorough probe at the Atlanta prison and would entertain any complaints which might be made at that time. He insisted, as did Congressman Cooper, that the committee was appointed primarily to investigate the crowded conditions in all of the federal prisons but that no phase of the operation of the prisons would be ignored.

Complaints To Be Made.
It is understood that complaints from various sources will be made relative to alleged irregularities in the granting of paroles and the extending of special privileges to certain prisoners. Both members of the committee declined to state positively just what might be called in during the probe of certain phases of prison life and activities, but indicated that if it holds necessary by the submission of valid complaints, that former prisoners will be summoned.

"We have no reason, at the present time, to believe that we will find scandal at any prison but we intend to make our investigation thorough and will do everything in our power to make it so," Congressman Cooper explained.

Constitution. In an exclusive story Sunday morning, gave out the first information relative to this nation-wide probe, which, it is understood, may prove to be as sensational as the investigation which was conducted here in 1924. Several Atlanta newspapers have been ordered to hold themselves in readiness, it was learned.

Warden John W. Snook, of the Atlanta penitentiary, Sunday night declined to state whether he had any formal notification of the probe and knew nothing of it beyond the information carried in The Constitution.

Brooklynite Goes to Poor-

BY SAM LOVE.
New York, August 12.—(United News).—The complete and final surrender to general hard luck by Colonel Frank Bartels, 71, one-time commander of the 47th regiment in Brooklyn, took place in the Elizabeth street police station today.

So weak from hunger that he could hardly drag himself to the desk, Colonel Bartels asked Detective William Kirk to have him committed to the house for the aged on Welfare island.

Everything went all right with Bartels until 24 years ago, he told Magistrate Stern when he was arraigned an hour later.

In the '70s and '80s he was a barber in Corbett's shop in Madison avenue at 53rd street. It was no ordinary barber shop and Bartels was

TEXAS DEMOCRATS
GIRD FOR BATTLE
AGAINST BOLTERS

Charge Prohibition Issue
Is Used as Mask for Religious Bigotry; To Bar
Bolters.

Austin, Texas, August 12.—(AP)—An intensive campaign for a straight ticket was launched by "regular" democrats of Texas at a mass meeting here yesterday called to take action designed to curb the activities of party members refusing the support Governor Alfred E. Smith for president.

After having roughly sketched the lines of battle for the national party ticket in this state, the delegates set to work to their homes girded to do battle toward throwing a heavy vote in support of the national party ticket.

"The regulars" asked the democratic state executive committee to bar from subsequent party primaries all voters who bolted at the November general election until "they have purged themselves by voting the regular democratic ticket in November, 1930."

Charging that the opposition to the New York governor in Texas was based on religious bigotry and that the prohibition question was merely a mask, speakers gave their endorsement of the presidential nominee.

The committee was further requested to interpret the pledge in the second primary August 25 so as to include all nominees rather than only those nominated in that election. Democrats were asked to withdraw support from all nominees of the primary who fail to make a public declaration of support for every name on the party ticket. In Texas a second primary will be held to determine the winner among the two high men in the first race, where the high man failed to obtain a majority.

The rally was called by National Committeeman G. A. Adams, Dallas, national committeewoman, and D. W. Wilcox, Georgetown, state chairman. At the same time, two other persons were in the Georgia Baptist hospital, and were thought to be victims of the same illness. The latter sufferers were G. C. Henson, with lacerations and bruises, and his wife, who was suffering from a broken collar bone and a fractured right arm.

TAMPA NURSERIES SUBJECT OF PROBE

Children Ill-Kept at Private Day Nurseries of Florida City, Say Social Workers.

Tampa, Fla., August 12.—(AP)—Miss Helen Mawrer, director of child welfare of the state public welfare board, is expected to arrive in Tampa this week to begin an investigation of private day nurseries at the request of the probation bureau of juvenile court.

The inquiry is the result of the examination of conditions recently made by social service workers of the Tampa Welfare league and community chest.

Mrs. Ruth W. Atkinson, executive director of the league, has arranged to have Miss Mawrer receive the assistance of the city health department as well as other bureaus of the city and county governments.

Conditions found at the privately operated nurseries, Mrs. Atkinson declared, indicate profiteering by persons who have no regard for the health of the children. The nurseries are patronized chiefly by employed persons, whose jobs compel them to leave infants in the care of nursery proprietors at per diem fees.

Regulation of the state welfare department, of which Commissioner Edward H. Cavin is head, require all nurseries as well as public and semi-public charitable institutions, to measure up to certain requirements outlined in laws passed in 1927 legislation. The deaths of two children from rat poison in a private nursery recently was said to have no connection with the investigation.

New York, August 12.—(AP)—Jobless and penniless, although a $10,000 legacy awaited him in Sweden, Sol Erickson, 53, a longshoreman, committed suicide today by inhaling illuminating gas in a west side rooming house.

His room-mate, who discovered the body, said Erickson had been despondent because he could not raise enough money to go to Sweden and collect $10,000 willed him by his father.

Mrs. Q. A. Jenkins, of 129 Wellington street, and her 16-year-old son, Jesse, are both in Grady hospital in critical conditions, and Lilly Jenkins, 13, was treated at the hospital for severe lacerations as the result of an automobile crash Sunday afternoon at the intersection of Lakewood avenue and Sylvan road. All of the injured were occupants in a machine driven by Q. A. Jenkins.

According to the story given county police by Jenkins, he was proceeding east on Sylvan road toward Painesville when his machine was struck by another car driven by P. D. Wilson, of 489 Woodward street, at the intersection of Lakewood avenue. Jenkins stated that the other machine was traveling on the left hand side of the road. The force of the crash demolished the Jenkins machine and threw all the occupants to the street.

Mrs. Jenkins received a fracture of the pelvis and Jesse Jenkins also was critically injured, receiving fractures of the skull and of the hip. Lilly Jenkins was treated at the hospital for severe cuts about the right leg, and was dismissed by doctors. Jenkins and L. M. Davis, of a Lakewood avenue address, another occupant of the car, escaped injury, as did L. M. Davis, Jr., three years old.

Wilson was taken to Fulton tower by County Officers Wells, Neil and Nims, and was released later on $1,000 bond. He was charged technically with assault and attempt to murder.

HOOPER DELUGED BY WIRED PRAISE

Varied Interpretations
Placed on Nominee's
Reference to Prohibition
Problem in Speech.

Stanford University, Calif., August 12.—(AP)—Literally deluged with telegrams, many of them from persons unknown to him, Herbert Hoover today was receiving the first reaction to his address of yesterday accepting the republican presidential nomination.

The general tenor of the messages was of such a character as to bring gratification to the nominee, but he was awaiting editorial expressions from the newspapers and other evidences before undertaking to assess the effect his speech may have had upon the country.

A telegram which especially pleased the nominee declared that the sender was one of the thousands who listened in on the radio, as it referred to the incident during the notification ceremony when one of the male spectators yelled, "we are with you, Herbert," while the candidate was expounding his views on prohibition.

Just as it was given the greatest attention by the seventy odd thousand people who were gathered in Stanford university stadium, the prohibition declaration apparently attracted the greatest attention throughout the nation.

While at least some of the political writers interpreted this as an ultra dry declaration, close friends of the nominee placed a somewhat different construction on the language. First of all they said that Hoover did not limit himself to the Volstead act, that he omitted any reference to that statute; they also asserted that the "organized searching investigation of the fact and cause" proposed by him would go beyond the abuses which have grown up in the carrying out of the Volstead act; that it would be directed also to the question of the workability of the present statutes if the investigation showed they were in conflict with the eighteenth amendment.

Likewise, these advisors contended, that in the very nature of its working, the nominee's statement that "modification of the enforcement laws which would permit that which the constitution forbids us, nullification," left the door open for changes in the present statutes if the investigation showed they were in conflict with the eighteenth amendment.

South Haven, Mich., August 12.—(AP)—An airplane dropped out of the sky today, grazing treetops and crashing into the automobile of Mrs. T. J. Gehlert, Benton Harbor, Mich. The pilot, known only as "Soring," was seriously injured.

Mrs. Gehlert and a woman companion were not injured when the plane crashed on the hood of the car, forcing it into a ditch a mile from here. The passenger in the plane, William Walther, Chicago, was slightly injured.

Captain Jacob Legion Tenny, Chicago, who was driving in the opposite direction of the Gehlert car, stated that he saw the plane falling and slowed up, avoiding a crash. The Tenny car was the only other car on that part of the highway at the time of the crash.

The plane was No. 1576 of the Benton Harbor Airway company.

FARM LEADERS WILL CONFER WITH SMITH

Group From West and South To Meet Governor
Today To Talk Over
Farm Relief.

Associated Press Staff Writer.
Albany, N. Y., August 12.—(AP)—Before putting the finishing touches on his acceptance speech, Governor Smith will confer here tomorrow with a group of farm leaders from the west and south, some, if not all of whom have expressed dissatisfaction with the stand of the republicans on agriculture.

The exact make-up of the delegation that will come to Albany for a round table discussion of the farm question with the democratic nominee has not been disclosed, but it is expected to include at least half a dozen of the men who have had a big part in the fight in Washington over relief legislation.

Arrangements for the meeting have been made by George N. Peek, of Illinois, chairman of the committee of 22 on agriculture, who recently declared for Smith, and it will be a forerunner of a series of conferences the governor will hold during the next few days with men whose advice he will seek regarding the conduct of his campaign.

Peek in Delegation.
The expectation is that Peek will bring with him at least two of the delegates to the republican convention in Kansas City who waged a losing fight for a farm plank in line with the principle of the McNary-Haugen bill which President Coolidge vetoed. Earl G. Smith, of Illinois, and Frank W. Murphy, of Minnesota, both of whom served on the national committee at Kansas City, are counted on by Smith advisers to be here.

In addition it is expected that others will be on hand will include William Hirth, publisher of "The Missouri Farmer"; W. H. Settle, president of the Indiana Farm Bureau Federation; X. Caveno, president of the Missouri Cotton Growers' association; J. N. Koehoe, a Mayville, N. Y., banker and former democratic member of congress, who is active in the Burley Tobacco Growers' association; H. W. Kilgor, president of the American Cotton Growers' association; and Chester G. Davis, former commissioner of agriculture in Minnesota.

Plans have been made for Governor Smith to confer also with several Minnesota farm leaders, in addition to Murphy, but whether they will be on hand tomorrow is not known here.

The alliance of Peek with the Smith campaign followed the announcement on Sunday that New York after he had discussed the farm problem with the governor, that the nominee had taken control of the sale of agricultural surplus is recognized by our platform as an essential need.

FORGER GETS $104,000 By New Ruse

Clever Scheme Is Worked Successfully on New York Trust Co.

New York, August 12.—(AP)—Disclosure that the Manufacturers Trust company had been swindled out of $104,000 by a series of forged checks was made today by police, who said the ten days' investigation had failed to reveal the forger's identity.

All the forgeries were against the account of one wealthy depositor, Inspector Coughlin said. The forger opened an account at the Chelsea Exchange bank, obtained a copy of the wealthy depositor's signature, then drew checks to the name under which he had opened his account and signed them with the forged name.

He deposited the checks to his own account at the Chelsea Exchange bank, withdrawing all the money in the account after seven forged checks had been deposited.

J. E. Conroy, vice president of the trust company, said neither of the banks involved had suspected the fraud until the depositor, whose name was not disclosed, received the cancelled forged checks. No employee of either bank was suspected of participation in the crime, he said.

Police believed the forgeries were committed by members of a band led by "the Scatcatcher," whose identity has not been established, although two of his alleged associates were arrested in connection with other forgery cases.

STRATON REFUSES TO DEBATE SMITH
IN CHURCH EDIFICE

New York Pastor Decides
Church Is Improper
Place, Sunday Wrong
Day, for Politics.

New York, August 12.—(AP)—The Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton, pastor of Calvary Baptist church, in a message read by his son, Hillier, from his father's pulpit tonight, refused to meet Governor Alfred E. Smith in debate in that edifice.

The younger Straton conducted the evening service in the absence of his father who is at his summer home at Greenwood Lake, N. Y.

"I stand ready to meet the governor at any time, except the Lord's day and in any suitable place," Dr. Straton wrote, "and I sincerely hope that he may be led to take my acceptance of his challenge at its face value."

Dr. Straton said his remark that "he would meet the governor face to face in Calvary Baptist church to repeat his charges that Governor Smith is 'the deadliest foe of moral progress in the country,'" was in the nature of a joke, as he knew the trustees of the congregation would have the last off saying of the church for "a purely political discussion."

Dr. Straton added that the story of his agreement to meet Governor Smith in his church was published in New York erroneously and as the result of a misunderstanding because of poor telephone connection when he dictated a statement to the newspapers.

In the statement read by his son, Dr. Straton did not offer specific place for the proposed debate. The pulpit of Calvary Baptist church was used as the rostrum for debate between Dr. Straton and William A. Brady, theatrical magnate, on the theater.

ONE LIFE LOST AT RICHMOND.

Richmond, Va., August 12.—(AP)—One life and great damage to railroads, highways, lowlands and farm crops was the toll which had been taken tonight by a storm which in various sections of Virginia following heavy and in some cases record breaking rains of Friday and Saturday.

The loss of one life, contributed to by the flood waters, came late today when Willie Ligon, 26, Richmond plumber, was drowned in the James river a short distance below this city while attempting to rescue property carried away by the high water. The boat was accidentally overturned in midstream. A companion, Ed Craig, 22, of Richmond, swam to the bank.

Washouts on about 200 roads and highways disrupted traffic. The city water reservoir at Newman's Mill on the Washington-Richmond highway, reported to be a short distance below this city while attempting to rescue property carried away by the high water. The boat was accidentally overturned in midstream. A companion, Ed Craig, 22, of Richmond, swam to the bank.

Delayed traffic was reported from a number of cities and towns. The only open highway from Richmond to the north early tonight was the Mechanicsville turnpike. Both the Richmond-Washington and the Richmond-Charlottesville highways were reported closed. Bridges were flooded to a depth of five feet by overflow waters from the South side river. A concrete abutment on the new bridge near Farmville washed out, causing traffic to be diverted to the Cumberland highway. Water in Cherry Stone creek on the outskirts of Chatham rose several feet above the bridge floors, rendering the highway impassable. Several buildings near the stream were flooded.

On mainland strong east winds possibly reaching gale force tonight.

Tropical disturbance of small diameter but apparently of considerable intensity about 60 miles south of Isle of Pines moving west northwest. Caution advised region of Yucatan Channel, western Cuba, Florida straits and southwest Florida coast next 24 hours.

FEAR FOR BOATERS.
Philadelphia, August 12.—(AP)—Many persons were rescued from stranded or disabled boats caught in the gale that swept the New Jersey coast and Delaware and Chesapeake bays today. No deaths had been reported up to a late hour tonight, but fears were felt for several persons known to have been out in boats when the storm broke.

The steamer Innoko, from Rotterdam for Philadelphia, sent out a lifeboat to rescue a man clinging to the tip of a mast in a submerged boat in Delaware bay. After the rescue the lifeboat was blown ashore on the Jersey marshes below Reedy's Island.

The Innoko wireless the coast guard at Cape May to go to the rescue. Whether others on the sunken craft had reached the shore in safety has not been learned. Trees, telegraph poles, signs and awnings were blown down and many minor automobile accidents occurred as a result of the storm.

Lowest Tobacco Prices In Years Being Realized, Georgia Growers Report

Waycross, Ga., August 12.—The fate of the tobacco industry in south Georgia still is believed to be hanging in the balance as the third week of the market opens. The second week brought a slight increase in prices, principally because of the better grades of tobacco offered by planters, and while the widespread dissatisfaction of the growers is somewhat lessened, it is still felt that prices are far below what they should be. It is predicted, from present indications, that the crop this year will bring at least 5 cents less than last year.

Conditions of the past week have offered a slight hope that there will be a continued rise in prices and that farmers will be able to realize more than the cost of production on their 1928 crop.

To date it is probable that tobacco has not brought enough to pay the cost of producing it, this condition existing on the South Carolina as well as the Georgia market. The fact that only a small percentage of the crop has been marketed leaves room, however, for growers to hope for a fair season even yet.

Offerings for the past week have been comparatively light on a majority of the market, unfavorable weather conditions delaying the hauling of the leaf to market. Many farmers believe, too, that prices would improve during the third week, and consequently they have held back on their sales.

A large percentage of the crop has been cured, according to reports from planters and warehousemen, and the coming week will reveal, to a large extent, what will be the outcome of the 1928 season.

"Successful Failure." Wide discussion has been given throughout the entire tobacco belt, principally in local daily and weekly papers of south Georgia, as to the reasons for the low prices. A number of meetings have been held where the problem was discussed, both from the standpoint of the buyer and the planter.

2 KILLED, 2 HURT IN AUTO CRASHES NEAR JONESBORO

Jonesboro, Ga., August 12.—(Special.)—Two unidentified negroes were almost instantly killed near here Sunday afternoon when the automobile in which they were riding left the roadway on a filled-in section, turned over and was almost demolished.

The negroes, who are believed to be from Griffin, were driving at a fast rate of speed, according to authorities, and death was almost instantaneous.

SALVATION ARMY LAYS CORNERSTONE AT LAGRANGE, GA.

LaGrange, Ga., August 12.—Voicing appreciation to people of all creeds who are supporting the evangelistic and human relief work of the Salvation Army in Georgia, Colonel Alfred A. Colonel Chandler's address was the feature of a program which included tributes to the Salvation Army paid by representatives of the American Legion, who recalled its service in the world war, of the ministerial alliance who praised its evangelistic program, and of the LaGrange advisory board who described its social service and relief work.

Colonel Chandler was assisted in the ceremonies by Staff Captain J. R. Leiby, Georgia divisional commander; Colonel A. W. Baillie, and Adjutant Arne Lelsson, of the territorial headquarters staff, and Captain Charles Johnson, officer of the local corps.

YOUTH LOSES ARM WHEN BOY FIRES GUN ACCIDENTALLY

Barnesville, Ga., August 12.—James Hale, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Hale, lost his arm as a result of an accident Saturday in which a load of shot was accidentally discharged at close range from a gun being carried by one of his companions. The young boy to whom the gun belonged laid it on a log and another came along later and upset the trigger. When the boys started home the gun, as soon as it was picked up, discharged, hitting the young Hale boy just above the wrist, making it necessary to have the arm amputated just above the elbow.

At the time the accident occurred the boy did not realize that he was hit, and seeing the blood that had spouted on his friend in front of him made an effort to help him, and when he started to raise his arm he found that it was he that had been shot.

SYNDICATE WRITER IS FOUND DEAD IN N. Y. APARTMENT

New York, August 12.—(AP)—Mrs. Hazel Deyo Batchelor, newspaper syndicate writer and the wife of Charles D. Batchelor, a newspaper cartoonist, was found dead today in her Washington square apartment. Her body was found by a maid.

Mrs. Batchelor had suffered for some time from heart trouble, her husband said. She recently had been employed by Associated Press papers in writing serial fiction. At one time she was employed by the Ledger syndicate of the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

50 ATLANTA BOYS ENTER FRESHMAN CLASS AT EMORY

Early information from the Emory university registration office shows more than 50 Atlanta high school graduates who already have been accepted to membership in the freshman classes of the college of arts and sciences and the school of business administration for the fall opening this year. Complete registration to date now totals 180, while applications are being received daily, according to Registrar J. G. Stipe.

Mr. Stipe believes the number of freshmen from Atlanta will be considerably larger this year than last. The 1927 class suffered a loss from local students because of the small high school graduating classes in Atlanta the preceding season, occasioned by the establishment of the junior high school here four years ago, which caused a year's skip in graduating classes.

There are several states represented in those who have already been accepted as freshmen. In addition to Georgia, the states of Florida, New York, Tennessee, North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama and Mississippi are represented. Several applications have been received from south Georgia, although Mr. Stipe predicts that the majority of the students from that section who would otherwise attend the Atlanta division of the university will enter the Emory junior college at Valdosta which opens for its first session in the fall.

J. D. YOUNGBLOOD PASSES IN VALDOSTA

J. D. Youngblood, 68, who for many years was a resident of Atlanta, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. C. F. Thigden, of Valdosta, late Saturday night from a sudden heart attack. The body was taken to Augusta Sunday for funeral services and interment, the arrangements of which will be announced later.

COL. F. L. MUNSON, INJURED BY AUTO, IS "RESTING FINE"

"Resting fine," was the report from the hospital at Fort McPherson late Sunday concerning the condition of Colonel F. L. Munson, commander of the R. O. T. C. unit at Clemson college, who suffered a fractured skull early Saturday morning when he was struck down at Forsyth and James streets by an automobile driven by

BOY BREAKS ARM IN FALL AT HOME

Ceverly Bullington, 10 years old, of 336 Eugenia street, suffered a compound fracture of the left arm Sunday afternoon when he fell from the banister of a stairway in his home while playing. He was treated at day afternoon when he fell from the Grady hospital, and dismissed.

Miss Eugenia Knox, of 94 North avenue, N. W. Colonel Munson was rushed to Davis Fischer sanitarium immediately after the accident, but later was transferred to the fort hospital and placed under the care of army surgeons. A case of reckless driving was docketed against Miss Knox, according to police reports.

MISSING COUPLE DRY ENFORCEMENT FOUND DEAD IN CAR CALLED FAILURE

Bradenton, Fla., August 12.—(AP)—Earl Keppler, 38, and Jean Hosmer, 22, missing since Thursday from their homes in Sarasota, were found dead in a secluded spot on Long Boat Key in Manatee county. Both were shot through the head, the pistol, a small automatic, lying beneath the girls' hand on the seat. The couple apparently had been dead two days.

A workman on the road being constructed on the key noticed the car and informed the sheriff's office here. Deputy Sheriff Clackwelder went to the spot and found the bodies.

The youth was a son of Mr. and Mrs. George G. Keppler, and Miss Hosmer was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clara C. Hosmer. Mr. Hosmer is an architect.

Officers were told the couple had wanted to be married and their plans were opposed by their parents.

HOTEL PICCADILLY
45th STREET
NEW YORK

Chicago, August 12.—(AP)—Anton J. Cernak, chairman of the Cook county board of commissioners and democratic candidate for United States senator, in a speech today pleaded for the election of Governor Alfred E. Smith and himself so that prohibition might be "remedied."

Cernak spoke at a picnic of the Motorists' Association of Illinois, of which he is president.

"If the propaganda that brought about the 18th amendment had been sincere and the great conditions came about that were promised, I would not be addressing you in this vein today," Cernak said. "They said we would be able to abolish prisons, insane asylums and poorhouses—today we cannot build them fast enough. The government wants to take over the Cook county jail we are abandoning as inadequate to house the violators of the liquor laws."

"Our state and county institutions are so crowded inmates are forced to be accommodated in the hallways and corridors. Crime has increased from 10 per cent to 74 per cent in different sections of the country. It is called the 'great experiment.' Usually when experiments fail they are remedied—that's what we are trying to do."

INSURANCE PRESIDENT FREED AFTER ARREST

St. Louis, August 12.—(AP)—Released at Chicago today by order of Chief of Police Joseph A. Gerk of St. Louis, Roy C. Toombs, president of the International Life Insurance company, was expected to arrive here tomorrow and face insurance commissioners of ten states.

Toombs was arrested in Chicago last night by order of Circuit Attorney Howard Siderer. While no information was made public against the president of the company, a photograph of a check for $185,000, issued June 1, 1928, was the evidence on which the arrest was made.

The release came today, Chief Gerk said, when Toombs signified his willingness to appear before the commissioners who have been investigating the alleged missing securities of the company totaling approximately $3,500,000. The request that Toombs be released was issued by Siderer.

The state insurance commissioners said they had merely presented their report to the circuit attorney yesterday to Circuit Attorney Siderer and Attorney General Stratton Sharrel. Neither Siderer nor Sharrel could be located tonight, and the commissioners said they did not know what formal charges, if any, would be brought against Toombs.

The commissioners said their report to the circuit attorney contained sufficient evidence to warrant the filing of charges of "embezzlement, perjury, converting the funds of the company to his own use," and other infractions of the general law and the Missouri insurance statutes.

The examiners said they would welcome the opportunity to have Toombs appear before them and to ask him for an explanation of the numerous transactions they had uncovered. In a formal statement issued by the commissioners criminal prosecution was discussed.

"We have given full consideration," the examiners said, "to the criminal liability which may attach on account of the shortage found in the assets of the company, and have been assured by Circuit Attorney Siderer that immediate and vigorous action will be taken."

The commissioners went on to say the investments of the stockholders and policy holders of the International Life Insurance company can be amply protected through reinsurance proposals now under consideration.

Siderer was understood to have arranged a conference here tomorrow with the attorney general of Illinois to discuss further the difficulties involving Toombs.

CUBAN NEAR DEATH WHEN SPEED BOAT SMASHES IN RACE

Long Beach, Calif., August 12.—Ramon Suero, Cuban sportsman, narrowly escaped serious injury late today when his speed boat, "Miss Habana II," was shattered in a race accident.

Suero was driving the craft in the first heat for the Fred Thompson trophy, offered by the moving picture actor for 151 cubic inch hydroplanes. He was running second to the champion, "Miss California," owned by Dick Loynes, when the rudder strut broke.

The rudderless craft, traveling at a speed of 50 miles an hour, plunged about the waves and turned over. Suero was thrown clear and escaped unhurt, but the boat was wrecked.

The accident came at the close of the Southern California Yachting association regatta.

The "Miss California" won the race.

PLANE CRASH KILLS FOUR SPECTATORS

Amsterdam, August 12.—(AP)—Four persons were killed when an airplane crashed among spectators at an aviation display at Heerlen, near Maastricht, today. The accident was caused by failure of the motor of the plane.

Overconfidence Greatest Danger to Novice Flier

BY DON BROWN.

(Copyright, 1928, in all countries by North American Newspaper Alliance.)
Newark-Elizabeth Airport, August 12.—In learning to fly, it seems inevitable that you reach a stage of overconfidence after five or six hours of training.

During the first two or three hours, the roar of the motor, the propeller, the air just ahead of you at a terrific rate, the strange behavior of the earth below and the unfamiliar feel of the controls contribute to an overwhelming experience. You feel pretty meek and are rather surprised when you survive.

Then, the reaction sets in. You begin to get used to it all. In about three more hours you suddenly decide you're a pilot.

Today I reached that stage. The fact that in the front cockpit sat one of the leading American war aces, who had out-manuevered eight German fliers and shot them down during the world war, and that he could take charge of the plane from his set of the dual controls at any moment, may have bolstered up my confidence.

"Hold your controls lightly," he reiterated as we started. "Feel how I take the plane off. When we get up to about 400 feet, take charge. Climb up to 1,500 feet and do any darn thing you want to."

I guess he forgot that he had put me into a stall at 1,500 feet and showed me how to pull out of it the other day.

Tried Same Stunts.

After climbing the plane to about that height, I tried some figure-eights and sharp turns. Since no comments came back through the speaking tubes, I decided I had gotten away with them all right.

"Now I'll try a stall," I thought.

I pulled the stick back and we began to climb steeply. I felt the stick jerked out of my hand and forward. The instructor turned and looked at me.

"Did you want to stall it?" I nodded.
"Wait till I get my safety belt hooked. All right. Go ahead."
I pulled the stick back toward me. This depressed the tail of the machine until we were climbing steeper and steeper. Suddenly the roar and scream of the wind about us and its push in my face ceased. The instructor throttled down the engine and there was an ominous stillness. I worked the controls this way and that but they flapped idly.

"Push the stick forward," the instructor said.

"Come Out All Right."
I pushed it forward as far as it would go and we fell into a dive. Then I straightened it out gradually. He opened the throttle and we were flying straight again.

"That was great," I thought. "Now I'll try a stall and a spin."
I pulled the stick back. He took it away from me again and called back, "What now?"

"I want to try a stall and a spin," I said.

"No! You have about 1,000 feet altitude. If you go into a stall you may fall 600 feet. If you go into a spin after that you may lose another 300 or 600 feet. Add that up!"

I added it up and decided I would practice some more straight flying.

He announced that a new Harmsworth trophy defender would be built at once and equipped with the same type of motors as those which powered the Miss America VI. He said he would have the craft ready to defend the trophy next month.

THE GUMPS—THEN YOU'LL REMEMBER ME

The Taming of Elizabeth

By WINIFRED BOGGS

SYNOPSIS.
The young Elizabeth is the adored daughter of Tim and Elizabeth Darcy. When she is four years old she runs away from home to avoid punishment for getting into mischief. She is brought home promptly by a neighbor, Miss Smiley.

At 12, Elizabeth runs away again, this time from school and to the home of her Aunt Dolly, in London. Dolly, who is almost as flighty as the young Elizabeth, sympathizes with her niece, much to the irritation of her stepson, Stephen. After the death of her parents Elizabeth goes to live with her aunt. During the war they keep themselves busy and also amused by performing in amateur theatricals for the benefit of wounded soldiers. Stephen, home on leave, is asked by his stepmother to bring Mark Lennox, a young playwright, to one of their performances. Shortly after the end of the war Mrs. Whitby dies suddenly in Brighton, and Elizabeth learns to her consternation that her aunt had frittered away the money left her by her husband, and had also disposed of some of Stephen's inheritance as well. Afraid to face Stephen after this revelation, Elizabeth decides to go to Mark Lennox in London and ask him to get her a job on the stage. Stephen finds her with Mark and, although his business has failed, he offers to help her. She refuses his help and advice, and takes a part in Mark's new play. On the opening night she gets into a fight and runs off, leaving an understudy to take over her part. Miss Smiley, who happens to be in London visiting her cousin, Mrs. White, sees Elizabeth on the street and takes her to Mrs. White's house. The latter offers her a job as cook and Elizabeth accepts. But she falls in love with the old lady's grandson, who makes all the arrangements with Elizabeth. Stephen arranges to take over the management of the latter's business. Elizabeth crosses fond of Mrs. Vestington, who showers attention upon her young companion, but the latter's mysterious companionship and seems a mystery about the house.

INSTALLMENT XXXVII.

THE VAMPIRE.
"If you feel like that, I wonder at you having a hand in it," said Stephen contemptuously. The fellow would be incapable by the time he got to London. A nice job!

"I do it because I can't help it; I'm in a trap same as that ward of yours—this trap among others," he shook the flask angrily. "I mean it, it's empty. It was about all the heritage my father left me. It rotted him, now it's rotting me. Well, why not?" He glared defiance at Stephen. "Makes a chap forget, helps to dull his conscience." His voice was tortured, hopeless.

"It does more than that," said Stephen kindly enough. "I say, old man, couldn't you try and decrease the doses by degrees? You know you're a clever fellow, got double my brains. I've only got a bit of sense and drive, power, nothing else; no brilliance, and precious little imagination."

"You miss a blessing—and a curse," returned the other gloomily. "Elizabeth is finely attuned, full of imagination. These very vital people often have, I think; I doubt whether the sluggish and the stolid would be much affected by the life at Mont Grange, but my aunt has no use for that type. One gets nothing out of them, none of the essence, the elixir of life, and she ceases to get the can. When she ceases to get the can, she ceases to live, and that ain't old Angela's way! So that's how it happens, when girls get devilized, imagination's wild in them; they see visions and dream dreams. . . . and they ain't pretty dreams. The terrors of reality are nothing to the terrors of imagination, as I happen to know."

"Because you poison your brain as well as your body. For God's sake make a stand before it's too late."

"It is already too late," returned Julian. "I can save others—myself I cannot save—or at least I could save them if you would help, but it is you who have thrust Elizabeth back into the slime, not I."

"You mean . . . when they returned those girls came and complained to you? Of what?"

"Of only fear. . . . fear by night and fear by day. They talked of the high walls with a shudder, uttered my aunt's name in a voice of terror, whispered of this and that, devilized, unnerved creatures, dangerously sick some of them, never to be quite the same again, that I will swear."

"Did Mrs. Vestington ever ill-treat them? Did they complain of that?"

"Never! They say she was too kind. . . ."

Stephen smiled. "That was all they had to complain of—kindness!"

"They said it was a dreadful, stifling kindness. . . . that it was driving them mad."

Stephen, remembering Elizabeth's vague complaints, had a moment's dismay. Could there be anything in this drunken raving?

"The place was once an asylum."

"Well, it is no longer that."

"Isn't it? I'm not so sure. I think it will take more than 50 years and a very different hand than my aunt to wipe out the stain of such a tragedy."

"You mean some young girl died there, Elizabeth spoke of it; she seemed to have it on the brain."

"Many of them do—get it on their brains sooner or later. After they have been there a month or so and begin to feel weak and ill and open to impressions. So Elizabeth is traveling down that road—to what? In your position I should have carted the girl off to my own home."

"I haven't got a home. I live in lodgings kept by a rigid landlady, and I happen to be unmarried. A bachelor can't have a young girl in his rooms."

"Yes, he can—if he married her," retorted Julian. "I'd give everything I have and am to stand in your shoes, have your chances, and it's less than nothing to you! You cold-blooded, selfish fish!"

Stephen went a dusky red. "You quite mistake the position between us," he said stiltedly. "Elizabeth looks upon me as a cross, and defies me all she can. We're actually antagonistic to each other. What you suggest is more than absurd."

"And most unpleasant, eh?" said the other, watching his face. "U, lool, know thyself!"

"A frivolous, spoiled child," burst out Stephen, feeling he had more than one person to convince.

"She'll grow up at Mont Grange," returned Julian. "If she has never thought before she will think now; never suffered or feared, she will come to do so. . . . Wait till my aunt has eaten up her youth. . . . That's what she's there for. . . . to be slowly devoured, blood and bone, and especially blood; here will run thin, and the other's will enter; the flesh will melt from her young bones to clothe the bones of age; her vitality will pass into the vitality of the other. . . . When there is no more to be got out of her she will be cast aside—like a sucked orange. . . . That's what will be yet, unfortunately, even when she is bodily ill the young Elizabeth has still some essence to be stolen, some vitality left. . . . Don't you see what I mean, man? My aunt is a vampire."

Stephen laughed. He thought he had seldom heard anything so ridiculous. "That a man with all the possibilities possessed by Julian should let drink rot his brain! What a tragedy! The fellow had far too much imagination, and the drink worked havoc with it. But vampire! Really that was too much. . . . What! One of those things that in old superstitious days was supposed to visit the graves of the dead?"

"My aunt is not in the least interested in the dead. As a matter of fact she hates the very sound of the word. She is solely interested in the living—and in keeping alive the vitality of the living. . . . At any price. My aunt is out to survive at the cost of the weaker. She is over ninety for all her pink, plump cheeks, her wonderful activity. . . . Where does she draw her inexhaustible vitality? From youth. O, I do not think she is conscious of it. I am almost sure she is not. . . . It is when she is in the company of strong youth she feels well and gay; that without she misses something essential to her well-being and that with some types she feels young again, while others are no earthly use to her. The more highly strung and sensitive the greater her unconscious power; that's what makes it so bad for them."

"Over ninety! I cannot believe it!" gasped Stephen.

"See her without a victim for a few weeks and you will easily come to believe it," returned Julian. "She tumbles into old age, then into mortality. And she must have all of her victims; they must be shut away entirely with her; not a drop of their essence must be wasted with companions of their own age, with other interests. There will always be vampires, young and old, men and women; their greedy vitality will exhaust the vitality of others. It's a subtle thing, but none the less strong. It is not only that at Mont Grange, you have other things. . . . And you have chuckled Elizabeth to them. It may not be so easy to get her away. You may never get her away, certainly never quite the same young Elizabeth."

Stephen felt uneasy; Elizabeth had changed. . . . and yet all this nonsense, what was it but the ravings of a drink-sodden brain? He spoke more harshly than he felt:

"I shall always get her back—worse luck!" he grunted. "I can assure you no bad penny ever turns up more regularly and at a more inconvenient moment than the young Elizabeth. Why, man, whenever she does not like a thing she just runs away from it, has done so all her life, and will continue to do so! It's a habit with her, almost a vice. If she gets too bored I shall find her seated in my quarters only of these days. . . . Having run away from me; she will run to me, and I shall want to shake the tiresome little monkey and have to exercise restraint!"

Road Building To Speed Up By Aid of Improved Machine

According to O. B. Duncan, manager of the contractors department of Yancey Brothers, Inc., large machinery dealers at 634 Whitehall street, S. W., it is now possible to secure the same smooth riding surface on asphalt roads as on concrete roads. This is made possible by using the same method of finishing with a mechanical finisher, which has proven such a successful aid in constructing concrete roads.

This has been proven in Burke county, Georgia, where J. W. Gwin, of Birmingham, Ala., and the Lee A. Gridley Construction company, of Knoxville, Tenn., are constructing a road consisting of eight-inch clay

The Constitution's Weekly Business Review

EDITED BY M. D. GLEASON

There is hardly a need or a want that cannot be filled in Atlanta's stores and factories.

engineers have made exhaustive tests, and have watched the action and results of the Ord machine finishing asphalt and they have all stated that they are well pleased with the results. The machine is capable of handling the output of the largest asphalt plants, and the labor saved will more than pay for the machine within its life. The riding surface of the finished pavement is far superior to that finished by hand methods, and we predict that the day of finishing asphalt by hand will soon be a thing of the past, except on city streets where car tracks or other objects would prevent the use of finishing with Ord finishers.

Mr. Duncan also predicted that when the road builders and county commissioners of this part of the country became better acquainted with the many advantages of the Ord smooth-surface finishing machine the building of good roads would go on faster than ever, as the time to finish a given stretch of road will be greatly cut down and the completed new road can be opened to the public very shortly after the last man picks up his tools.

NEGRO'S "JOY RIDE" WRECKS CALL BOX, ENDS AT BASTILE

John Scott, colored, of a Houston Mill road address, ended a short and disastrous joy ride at police headquarters, where he was charged with driving an automobile while intoxicated, and with reckless driving.

According to police reports, Scott was speeding down Edgewood avenue, careening wildly from side to side as he approached Hurt street. At the intersection the machine struck a fire call box, plunged across the sidewalk, and came to rest in the front yard of F. J. Quinn, of 123 Hurt street. Officers who investigated decided that the street was the proper place for the auto, and jail for the negro, so Scott is now waiting trial.

Identification Card Saves Car Owner Much Embarrassment

A striking illustration was reported the other day of the value of an automobile service card. It seems that an automobile owner living in the neighboring state of Tennessee was driving through Madison, Conn., and struck and injured a boy in that city.

Being a stranger in that eastern city and more than 800 miles from home, the car owner was very much distressed at the accident, first because of the injury to the boy and then because of the delay it would cause by court action and interruption of his extended trip.

The car owner at first was at a loss what to do to save time and expense, when he looked in the pocket in one of his car doors and took out a Traveler's policy and then for the first time he read it through and found that it covered just such a predicament as he was in. His service card that came with it could properly identify him to the satisfaction of the legal authorities.

No sooner had the Tennessee man put away his Traveler's policy than a state policeman, who had been called to the scene, came to him and inquiring the facts in the case, shook his head and said it looked serious and that the driver would have to be held until he could make bond. The car owner again took out his policy and after the policeman read it, he said he would release him. He had to hold you as this policy will more than indemnify the injuries to this boy.

The car owner then looked up the Traveler's local representative in

Factory Representative Here Takes On New Improved Lines

To most of us all doors are about the same; perhaps we might classify them as just large doors and small doors, but when it comes to holding them open and shutting them without slamming, it seems that there are as many different sorts of doors as there are different sorts of people. The Glyn-Johnson corporation of Indianapolis, Ind., specializes in making devices for keeping doors open. They have two slogans, "Stop Slamming Doors," and "A Hold for Every Door on Land or Sea."

In the show room of Mr. Edward Wilson Theobald at 512 Red Rock building, who is the factory agent, can be seen all sorts of these devices, for big doors, for little doors, for doors which open outwards, and doors which open inwards, and doors which open over ramps. All holders are of solid bronze, and as well as being the last word in practicality, are an ornament to any door. Mr. Theobald has just filled an order for 250 of these holders for the Biltmore

A Little Good Information Passed On to Business Men

"One of the best phrases I have happened upon in months," states S. Guthman, president of the Atlanta Envelope company, "appeared in an article recently published by 'Postage and the Mail' magazine. The phrase in question was: 'The Neglected Cinderella of Direct-Mail.' It had reference to envelopes and some of the remarks made are extremely pertinent and worthy of consideration by every business man."

"The writer asks the question: 'What is an envelope? Is it a mere holder and protector of the catalog, booklet or folder within? If the booklet, folder or catalog is thought of as though it were a living sales man, is the envelope merely the elevator man who delivers the sales man to the proper floor and disappears, or is it like a mutual friend who escorts the salesman into the office of the prospect and introduces him?'"

"The article goes on to say that analyses have shown that three-quarters of all business men open their

TEXAS MAN TO DRIVE FAST WHILE FASTING

Edinburg, Texas, August 12.—(United News.)—Claude Armstrong, of Edinburg, plans to leave here August 20 on a fast of from thirty to fifty days while driving an automobile to the capital of every state in the union.

He expects to average 500 miles daily on the 17,500-mile trip. He will be accompanied on the long jaunt by a relief driver, a physician and a newspaperman.

The washing out of one bridge and the approach to another.

Traffic to Gray and Athens was detoured through Jones county, and to reaches Dublin and other points south it was necessary to use this only outlet to the north and east. About thirty-five miles farther than the regular route.

Food and ice for people in the Cross Keys settlement, on the lower Milledgeville road, had to be carried across planks spanning the chasm caused by the washout of Walnut creek bridge.

Reports from Milledgeville tonight showed that the flood situation there is rapidly clearing up. Traffic on highways and railroads has been restored and no further trouble is anticipated.

DOING GOOD WORK IN THEIR LINES

It has been said that the average person spends nearly one-third of his life in bed. If this be true, one surely should have nice soft downy mattresses to sleep on, like the Superior Mattress company, of 935 Bankhead avenue, make or renovate. Surely no healthy man or woman could sleep eight hours in comfort on some of these lumpy mattresses we have and slept on in our travels around these southern states.

The Superior Mattress company for the past seven years has been renovating mattresses in or near their same location and during this time they have had the satisfaction of renovating mattresses several times for the same families.

This firm also has several large boarding houses, small hotels and private institutions for which they do work every year.

This is also the time of the year when Atlanta housewives make extra preparations for new friends and relatives who are moving into Atlanta to locate temporarily with them until they get located and settled. Again, this is the time when some parents wish to provide an extra touch of comfort to the boy or girl who has been away for a few days or weeks and replace the old lumpy mattress with a new soft, downy one, and this is quickly done by calling the Superior at HE 9274. The old mattress will be returned in a few hours with the cotton regimined, the dust all blown out of it and a brand-new tick of whatever desired pattern covering put on it and for comfort and looks it is like new again.

The proprietors here, H. R. Simons and W. O. Meadors, are both men of long experience in the making and renovating of mattresses, and they have built up a successful business by doing the very best mattress work at the most reasonable prices, and with

SACRED HARP SINGERS WILL CONVENE FRIDAY

The Interstate Sacred Harp Singing convention will meet in regular convention at the Fulton county courthouse here on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, August 17, 18 and 19. Daily sessions will be held beginning at 9 o'clock in the morning, and closing at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Evening sessions will be held Friday and Saturday nights, beginning at 7:30 o'clock and ending at 9 o'clock. Refreshments will be served by the refreshment committee each day at 12 noon.

This is a continuation of the first singing convention to be organized in the south, the first convention having been held in 1847 in Pike county, Georgia.

It has been held each year since that time, except during the early sixties, when one or two conventions were not held due to the stress of the times. The convention originally was organized by Major B. F. White, the author of the Sacred Harp song book, to whose memory a monument was erected in Oakland cemetery two years ago by this convention.

The local officers of this convention are S. C. Mann, president; J. P. Marks, vice president; R. B. Lambert, secretary and treasurer; G. M. Roberts, chaplain; E. T. Stanley, chairman, program committee; W. Thomas Johnson, chairman entertainment committee; T. A. Landers, chairman memorial committee; Faris Cok, chairman ways and means committee.

All singers and lovers of this singing are cordially invited to attend this convention.

HIGH LIGHTS OF HISTORY

Registered U. S. Patent Office.

THE SIOUX WAR OF 1876 WAS THE LAST GREAT CONFLICT WITH THE INDIANS OF THE WEST. IT ENDED WITH THE DEFEAT OF THE TRIBES AND THE VICTORY OF THE WHITE MAN'S CIVILIZATION. ABOUT THIS TIME A COMMISSION WAS SENT AMONG THE INDIANS TO LISTEN TO THEIR GRIEVANCES AND STUDY HOW THE SITUATION MIGHT BE IMPROVED.

THE RED MEN WERE TIRED OF FIGHTING AND A GREAT NUMBER GAVE UP THEIR HUNTING RIGHTS AND MOVED TO INDIAN TERRITORY. WHERE THEY WERE PROMISED LANDS IN SEVERAL SCHOOLS FOR THEIR CHILDREN, AND REGULAR DISTRIBUTION OF FOOD AND SUPPLIES AS WARDS OF THE GOVERNMENT.

Peace in the West.

by J. CARROLL MANSFIELD

THE SIOUX PROTESTED AGAINST THEIR REMOVAL TO INDIAN TERRITORY AND WERE ALLOWED TO REMAIN IN THE NORTH. IN 1879, SITTING BULL, WHO HAD FLED TO BRITISH COLUMBIA WITH HIS BAND, RETURNED ON A PROMISE OF PARDON AND RESIGNED HIMSELF TO LIFE ON THE RESERVATION. (HE WAS KILLED IN 1890 DURING THE INDIAN "MESSIAH" CRAZE.)

THE GOVERNMENT WISHED TO BREAK UP THE TRIBES AND PERSUADE THE INDIANS TO ADOPT A CIVILIZED LIFE AND EVENTUALLY BECOME CITIZENS. INDIANS WERE GRANTED PLOTS OF LAND, TO BE HELD IN TRUST UNTIL THEY WERE CONSIDERED QUALIFIED TO RECEIVE FULL TITLE. IN RECENT YEARS THE GOVERNMENT HAS SPENT LARGE SUMS ON THE EDUCATION OF THE INDIANS.
